Unusual Week

Unusual Week:

Because of the CTP testing and Yom Ha'Atzmaut, we will not have many regular classes this week. Instead, students will spend time learning how to complete their portfolio scavenger hunts and working on a special banner for Yom Ha'Atzmaut. There will be no homework this week except for a purple WOW word, which is due Friday.

Portfolios:

Today, students are bringing home their academic portfolios with highlights of all the work they have completed this school year. Please read the parent letter and look over the portfolio packets. There is a sheet for you to sign and return to me tomorrow. Several things to note:

1. The running away letters and 2 voice poems are still on display in the hall, but if your child wants to include either as evidence of his/her learning let me know.
2. If your child is returning to Akiva next year, I need you to send back all his/her formal writing prompts. If your child wants to include a prompt in his/her portfolio, I will photocopy it.

Downtown Scavenger Hunt:

I still am in desperate need of volunteers to accompany the 4th grade on their downtown scavenger hunt and trip to the TN State Museum. I would hate to cancel the trip, I but I need at least one other adult to help with supervision and driving. Please let me know ASAP if there is any way you can help.
