General Studies

This Week

We finished our first Math unit this week. Students learned all about angles, lines, and geometric shapes. The class average on the first math test was 95% the highest average I have had so far! We also finished our summer stories and they will be emailed home next week. In science we worked on classifying plants and animals. We learned how plants and animals are classified and why. Social studies was extra fun! We had a map search contest on Friday and will continue it next week!

Thanks for joining us for Curriculum Night. Please feel free to email Morah Keren or Mrs. Chapman with any questions you may still have.

Have a wonderful and sweet New Year!!!

Next Week

Some of our more exciting upcoming events are...continuing our map skills contests and starting a new math unit all about numbers, numbers, numbers! We will take a PE break next week, but September 15 will find the third and fourth grade PE class designing new games!

Judaic Studies

In the last week we have continued studying about Rosh Hashanah. We started studying about the process of performing Teshuvah - Repentance. We learned that if you apologize for something you did wrong and then later repeat the same offense, it is not true Teshuvah. The highlight of the week was going on a field trip and studying about bees and how honey is made. One of the kids said that it was the best trip ever.

In Torah, we took a quiz about Chapter 27 in Breishit which focused on understanding biblical grammatical constructions in modern-day language.

I wish you all a meaningful Rosh Hashanah and a year filled with happiness, sweetness, and health.
